INTRODUCTION

We have made a web-based project which is easy to maintain, scalable and ready to run project which can be used by everyone and it does not require any educational level or experience. The user can search the desired book by the respective publisher and purchase it later. User will register himself to purchase. Customer will add the desired book to cart and be able to purchase books from our database.

Problem-solving side of our project?

This removes the time-consuming task of planning and making a trip to the bookstore.
